

People On The Move

Patti Cullen has been named president and chief executive officer of Care Providers of Minnesota (CPM). She will assume her new responsibilities July 1 following her predecessor Rick Carter's retirement. Cullen has been with CPM since 1986, most recently as vice president. In addition to her government affairs work, Cullen has been responsible for managing member services, research, external communications, and staff management. Among the most important priorities Cullen brings to her new job are working to create a new system of paying for older adult services that balances individual and family responsibility with public dollars, making sure that every community in Minnesota is able to meet the changing needs of their older adults as the state's population of older adults increases, and helping the members of CPM innovate and change as demands on their services and resources increase.

Brookdale Senior Living, Nashville Operating Group, has promoted C. David Goodin to the position of executive director of Glenwood Gardens in Bakersfield, Calif. His responsibilities include the management of a 20-acre gated continuing care retirement community consisting of 166 independent living cottages and apartments, 118 assisted living and memory care apartments, and a 120-bed skilled nursing facility. Goodin has more than 30 years of experience in management of resident-program-driven continuing care retirement communities.

James Jamison of Victoria Commons Assisted Living, North Cape May,

CULLEN

N.J., has been promoted to maintenance director. Jamison is a 14-year employee at the Commons.
